

What's the Value of Information Technology at your Agency?

Does your agency's strategic plan list information technology (IT) amongst the key elements needed to meet the agency's mission? Do IT solutions have a multiplier effect—changing the way you do business or presenting new opportunities for efficiency, even cost-savings?

If no, then IT may just be a support function and not an integral part of your agency's business strategy. In this webinar we'll look at how IT has delivered significant business value at government agencies. You'll leave with new insight into how you can determine the business value of IT at your agency.
